We are driving steadily. As I had to sweep the loose gravel on the first loop, I would like to drive fast enough to catch up with stage times of JRC competitors. Actually road condition differs depending on start order, so it may not have any meaning to compare with them. This time I have to finish the rally with 6 of Michelin tyres and I realized their tyres are amazing

The stage time difference between Mr. Fukunaga and myself shows differences of our driving skills. Road surface traction today is less than yesterday stages, but there is no difference from what I have to do. So we will drive in the same way.

It's raining but I am enjoying. I think my driving skill is improving. I will push a little more and finish the rally.
